1. Preamble

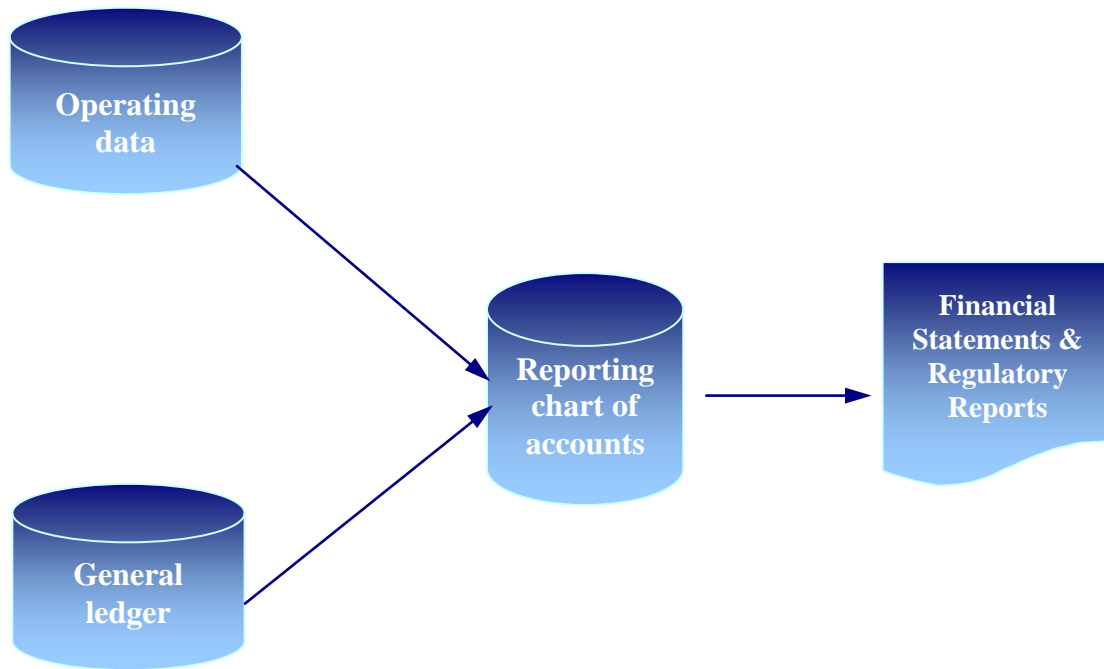

1. Preamble

This draft Reporting Chart of Accounts (RCOA) has been developed keeping in view the returns provided by the Banking Supervision Department of the State Bank of Pakistan (SBP). Presently, the banks/DFIs extract the information required for statutory reporting and SBP returns from their general ledger and operating data (subsidiary systems) which is illustrated in the following diagram.

RCOA will work as middleware between the banks/DFIs information system and the reporting requirements. This concept is close to the Taxonomy adopted by the U.S. Federal Reserve. Further, the International Accounting Standards Board (IASB) is also in the process of developing IFRS taxonomy. The purpose of this RCOA is to enhance the uniformity of information reported by banks/DFIs. Through the RCOA, the banks/DFIs will report their information in the relevant codes to SBP. RCOA would not entail significant changes to the banks accounting systems and as it would help them generate substantially all the information required by SBP in a single document which is independent from their own accounting systems. Further, SBP can also extract several additional reports directly from RCOA as per its requirements. The concept of RCOA is illustrated below:

It is expected that RCOA will improve the quality of reporting as common language will be used for the reporting purpose and SBP will be able to request information by specifying standard codes, which will help in eliminating communication gap between the SBP and Banks/DFIs. Further, the RCOA is flexible as new codes can be added, whenever required.

This document has been divided into the six sections.

Section I	Coding mechanism of the RCOA
Section II	Reporting chart of accounts
Section III	Explanations of reporting component
Section IV	Component attribute
Section V	Reporting lines.
Section VI	Annexures

2. Coding Mechanism

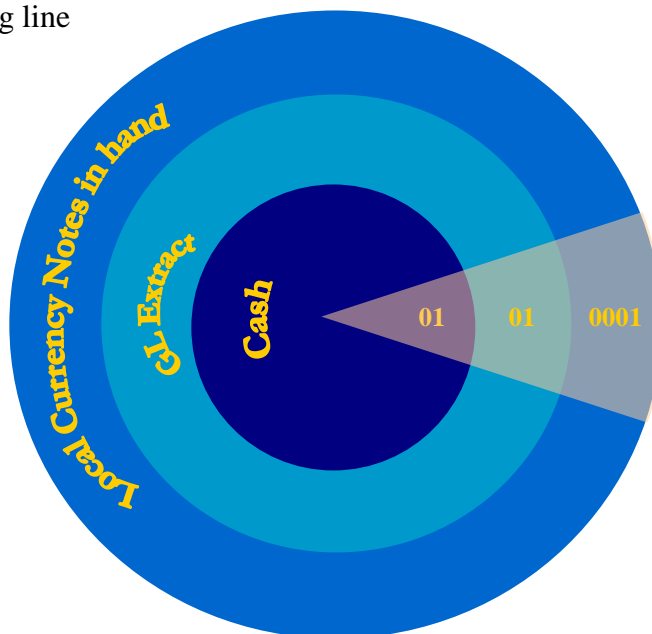

2. Coding Mechanism

Each item of RCOA is divided into three code fields. First two digits of each code has been assigned field 1 which represent the reporting component to which the item relates. Next two digits are categorized as field 2 which shows the attributes of the line items within the reporting components. The last four digits are termed as reporting lines and assigned code field three.

All the three code fields are further defined as follows:

CODE FIELD 1 REPORTING COMPONENT	Reporting component represents reporting heads of balance sheet and profit and loss account such as cash, advances, deposits, income, expenses etc and other non financial components such as contingencies, memorandum items, branches, etc.
CODE FIELD 2 COMPONENT ATTRIBUTE	Component attributes are further extensions/explanations/characteristics of the reporting component. Reporting components such as deposits may be broken into industry segment geographical segment and various currencies.
CODE FIELD 3 REPORTING LINES	Reporting lines are the individual items to be reported by the banks and DFIs

For example code no. 01010001 relates to local currency notes in hand. First two digits (01) represents reporting component i.e. cash. The next two digits (01) represent component attributes i.e. general ledger extract and the last four digits (0001) represent the reporting line
